by José Rivera directed by Juliette Carrillo

A surrealistic fable set in Barstow, California? Yes, if the moon plays a violin in the sky and the coyote performs a provocative dance for the cat. With humor and understanding, Rivera explores the subconscious elements of a relationship between a soldier and his wife. He is in history, jumping from planes, climbing mountains, defending oppressed countries. For her, dreams are the real world, and she only wants to know if he saw the moon last night.
